With reference to your letter cited above, I have examined the question paper of fourth semester Bsc CBCSS carrier related Mathematics degree examination July 2017 - Mathematics complementary course for Chemistry and Industrial Chemistry MM 1431.7 code C - 3877. All the questions are from the syllabus. Question number 33 is lengthy. So for question 33(b) marks may be given for solving the problem using divergence theorem instead of verifying the theorem. The chairman of the board of evaluation may consider this while preparing the scheme of evaluation.

With reference to your letter cited above, I have examined the question paper of fourth semester Bsc CBCSS carrier related Mathematics degree examination of July 2017 - Mathematics complementary course for physics and Computer applications, MM 1431.6 with code C - 3882. For question 12 two marks may be given to those who attempt the question. All the other questions are from the syllabus. Question 33 is lengthy. So for question 33 (b) marks may be given to those who solve the problem using divergence theorem instead of verifying the theorem. The chairman of the board of evaluation may consider this while preparing the scheme.
