INTRODUCTION

Mannaniya College of Arts and Science, affiliated to the University of Kerala, is established in 1995. The college situated at Pangode, a remote village in Thiruvananthapuram district, owes its existence to the farsighted vision of Jamiya Mannaniya Islamiya Charitable Society, a congregation of erudite Muslim religious scholars. This co-educational institution is aided by the Government of Kerala and has also been recognized as an Institution with the Minority Status by National Commission for Minority Educational Institutions. The college has been included in the 2(f) and 12(B) categories of UGC since 2004. The college offers 4 UG programmes and 1 PG programme under the regular aided scheme. The UG and PG students are admitted to programmes based on the centralized allotment system of the University of Kerala. The college has a well-qualified and dynamic faculty that regularly upskills to enrich teaching, research and outreach processes. The institute has adequate infrastructure facilities to support Information and Communication Technology (ICT) based teaching and learning process. The institute strives to improve the socio-economic status of the economically weaker section by providing opportunities of education. Mannaniya College of arts and Science is committed to provide value-based education by frequently improving the services to produce qualified and competent graduates and to transform itself into a Centre of Global Excellence.

Mission

- Conceptualizing postmodern classroom strategies, curricular objectives, and evaluation measures
- Facilitating a context-sensitive, location-specific teaching /learning atmosphere based on local linguistic and socio cultural particularities.
- Integrating digital technology through the utilization of 'state of the art' infrastructure and learning resources.
- Developing a new paradigm that is student-cantered, environment friendly and 'all-inclusive learner support system'; so as to prepare students to be contributors of knowledge and not just merely recipients of knowledge.
- Making the college a 'symbol of excellence', a 'model of efficiency', and an example, in terms of academic standards, skill development, autonomy, accountability and self-sustainability based on the framework of governance, leadership and management
- Aiming at core competency development through 'work-based community engagement' and 'community –based' action research.
- Developing empathy, compassion and commitment to local community life.

Our Objectives are:

In order to translate these objectives into action, Mannaniya College of Arts & Science offers liberal education to all, especially to women and economically weaker sections of the society, inspiring them to become academically proficient, financially independent and socially committed citizens. The college stands for excellence in academics, skill development and character formation. It has been performing remarkably well in curricular and extra-curricular activities since its inception. Gender gap in science is an enigma or mystery which baffles the academia for a considerable time. According to many statistics and data there is huge gender gap in the field of science and technology. (Only 14%, women is the where as the global average is 28.4% in the field of Science is a proof to hypothesise Science is considered generally as a male profession. (In IIT only 10% are women and merely 5% Science fellowships are awarded to women in India.)

To identify the qualitative factors that pull back women from STEM even in this millennium and seek solutions to bring parity is the need of the hour in this digital-era that shows a surge of interest everywhere in developing scientific technology. Therefore, the ingenious girls of B.Sc Chemistry belonging to the group were assigned with the mission of attempting to solve this enigma. They were first instructed to do a literature survey of eminent women scientists of international acclaim, along with their Indian counterparts. This was to inspire them immensely, lest they might be dispirited by the demotivating nature of the task assigned to them. Then they were made to select diverse areas pertaining to the different fields of Science, and trace the reasons and factors that leads to the under representation of women scientists compared to male scientists, and that deter them so much from pursuing promising careers in science. It is believed that there is a lack of women in academia related to Science Technology. Do the severe strains involved or the potential challenges or any other difficulties faced by women scientists hinder them in preferring and pursuing the male-dominated domain of science? They were asked to focus on identifying the impediments, barriers and issues faced by most women scientists driven by societal gender stereotypes, especially in technical and IT fields. There are less opportunities and more impediments to balance their work-home paradigm as the field demands consistent commitment without flexibility that are deterring many capable women from investing on careers in Science. Hence, with the noble view of changing and challenging this perspective, to improve the status of women in science and to instill passion in the young science students to break this barrier, they were asked to trace the life stories and career path of women scientists who emerged successful from the nation, especially from their state. Some women had successfully broken the myths and barriers to engrave their names in the myriad fields of Science. Are there any road blocks to success which steer women away from a scientific career or from pursuing their passion for science? Does gender matters in Science? These are some of the issues that need to be traced and corrected.

There are lot of gaps in history books which needs to be filled for getting a complete picture of our past. One such gap is the role played by women which is left unsaid in almost all books of history. It is the duty of all students of history to contribute their part to complete these gaps by their own research. One such area is the life and social history of the socially invisible women, especially of those belonging to the Muslim Community. As young students of Islamic History too they are obliged to contribute to this specific area so as to fill the gaps and lending a sense of completeness to our books of history, as well as contributing to the knowledge domain.

As the particular information was lacking in the printed books on history the students were asked to do research through the mode of oral history by documenting personal experiences of their older generations by gathering information from people personally , through anecdotes, to understand and recreate the past and record it for the future generation. It is an attempt to recreate women's life, customs, leisure, time activities, food habits, ceremonies and celebrations, dressings style and ornaments, lifestyle , modes of communication, literary taste, reading habits, means of entertainment, (music, dance, etc) in the last century. Each student, after splitting them into small groups, was assigned a specific topic in these areas so as to cover all the aspects of their social life comprehensively. The final output when completed successfully as proposed would be an original contribution to our history to the present and future generations, as it intended to be published as book.

The students were provided guidance in each stage asked to conduct a background study of the age before starting the research to prepare an appropriate and probing questionnaire. They were also instructed to properly document the source of information.

The student of each class diligently completed the research and successfully compiled their research Material for their prospective books titled as cited below:

BA: 'HER STORY' in 'HIS STORY' An Oral history of Muslim Women's Social life during the Early Half of 20th Century

B.Sc: Women and gender gap in Science, Technology & Scientific Research: Problems and Prospects

B.Com: Women Administrators & Managers & CEO's: Success Stories

TTM: Women Entrepreneurs Who Overcame Challenges in the Sphere of Travel and Tourism.
